

MODERN INSANITY IN ISRAEL

by Barry Chamish

July 8, 2008

The Israeli people are being turned mad, in the modern sense of insanity, not ancient Freudian theory. The concept of modern madness seems remote from dry politics, but it is not. Israeli writers know their leaders are acting insanely and the best they can do is describe flawed, if not suicidal, political decisions, and no more. They are incapable of delving into the core reasons for national insanity.

For the wrong reasons, I interviewed two experts, a therapeutic nurse and a former high school and city counselor. Both were on my e-mail list and were deeply concerned about Israel. I shared these concerns and had others. The long discourses led to, at least, a partial understanding of the psychological forces destroying Israel.

The leaders of Israel are habitual liars. They work behind their public's (children's) back and, at least since the so-called Oslo "peace" of 1993, seldom tell the truth. They lie with reckless abandon, to the point that Israel's police force no longer shoots at terrorists. The cops are too afraid of the consequences to do their job.

Israel is 60 years old, meaning it is in its second generation. The children of the first generation Labor Party founders produced children who are dragging the nation into ruin, while their children, who were once supposed to defend the land, are mostly too busy with drugs and strange sex to get up in the morning and bother. My interview subjects conclude that Israel is, first, a nation ruled by female sexual addiction. In short, compulsion rules, thought is gone.

Here are the behaviors to look for:

<http://www.nacronline.com/dox/library/marnie.shtml>

The neurochemical changes that happen in your brain when you engage in sexual activity are closely related to the changes that take place in your brain when you take crack cocaine. So there is a physiological, biological base to this addiction. There is also an emotional component to this addiction. The shame that the addicted person feels is overwhelming...There are four components that make any addiction an addiction. First, there has to be a compulsion...A second key component of any addiction is obsession...The third main hallmark of an addiction is continuing in spite of negative consequences...The last main characteristic of addiction is tolerance; The disease progresses either to more and more of the same behavior or to higher risk behaviors. For women who are sex addicts there is a big power component at work. The wounds of sexual abuse are profound. It is my conviction that until we face clearly the wounds of childhood abuse we will not be helpful to sexual addicts whose struggles are rooted in abuse. We know that eighty-one percent of sexual addicts, both men and women, are adult sexual trauma survivors - untreated trauma survivors. It is critical to understand this link between sexually abusive experiences and sexual addiction. Sex addicts believe this: If you really knew me, you would leave me. There is this front that I present to the world, and maybe it looks really good on the outside, but it's not what is on my inside. If you knew me, you would leave. These core beliefs, are often impacting us on an unconscious level.

Interview subject number one adds: "The second generation was abused by and hates their parents, mostly their fathers. They know their allegiance was to foreign beliefs that somehow forged a nation. A whole generation was personally abused, neglected and traumatized by this and is getting even by destroying their abusive fathers' country. They learned to lie and believe they can out-lie daddy and mommy. It's all justified in their heads by the results. They've lost contact with what is honest and not. Just so long as they get their way, anything goes. Whatever opposes their "reality" is simply walked away from. This is total denial, and this is what this generation and the next suffer from. It is not easily curable."

Subject two: "They never talk openly about the abuse they suffered. They are too overwhelmed by guilt for that. And no matter how many people they should love get hurt, maimed or murdered, they bear no personal responsibility. Their other "fathers" told them the victims were somehow guilty and objective truth will not get in their way. Like the addict who believes sex is power, their passing pleasure is the only milestone which guides them. You agree with their every perverse thought or you pay. If not, you'll be lucky if they leave with little damage. Better odds are they take off in a flurry of, what they believe, is vengeance."

Let us now look at the real "fathers" of Israel. We begin with why an entrepreneur cannot make a living in Israel and we learn that of a mere 12 people who run the county's economy, three take their orders from the force that is destroying the land, The Council On Foreign Relations. Needless to say, this group controls every Israeli government including Olmert's. Then we carry on from there:

Forbes Reinforces Claim That Kadima Tool of Oligarchs

Monday, April 3, 2006 / 5 Nisan 5766

Forbes Israel reported Sunday that twelve business groups control Israel's economy - making it among the most concentrated on the globe. The report echoes warnings by journalist Ari Shavit. According to the report, the business groups are controlled by the following families: Sami Ofer, Nochi Dankner, Shari Arison, the Cerberus-Gabriel consortium, Charles Bronfman, Yitzchak Tshuva, the Saban group, Lev Leviev, Matthew Bronfman, Tzadik Bino, the Borovich family, and Eliezer Fishman. The 12 families own 60 percent of the aggregate market value of all Israeli public companies (excluding the even larger Teva Pharmaceutical Industries), Forbes reported.

The report goes on to say that the families have constructed their empires, which consist of Israel's largest companies, using organizational structures that have long ago been done away with in the Western world.

(IsraelINN.com) The London Economist stated that the deteriorating education system threatened Israel's long-term prosperity. The widely respected journal noted that Israel has achieved remarkable success since the re-establishment of the Jewish state 60 years ago but that much of it is becoming a mirage.

"Beneath its gleaming high-tech skin, the body of Israel's economy is slightly worn," the magazine stated. "Much of the country's traditional industry, such as machinery, chemicals, clothing and food, which accounts for more than half of its jobs, is lackluster. Average industrial productivity is around half that in America."

It cited lack of research and development outside of high-tech industries as threatening economic growth. It also expressed concern over the concentration of most of Israeli wealth in the hands of a few families while the rate of poverty grows.

Now even the sex addict seeks a partner, and in modern terms, she finds comfort in a slightly more devastated creature known as the crack addict. This is what's running Israel into the ground:

<http://cocamuseum.com/htm/addiction.htm>

Nevertheless, that association to the "sexually-prohibited", appears to remain as just that, because in the majority of the cases of high doses of pasta, contrary to the cocaine crystal effect, difficulties for erections and inclusively a manifested rejection to sexual activity occur...Slowly, as the consumption of pasta continues, anxiety, hyper-vigilance, fear of being discovered, guilt suspicion and mistrust dominate the individual's psychic until it completely separates him from reality...It is the weak "guardian angel" that wears himself out in promises, despair, reproaches and guilt. And there, at the bottom, behind the scenes, in the darkness of the unconscious, is the other automatic mechanism: a true mischievous little devil that "casually" steers the car's wheel to the corner where pitillos are sold. The pitillero suffers a progressive disorganization of his life, abandons his routine obligations, work, social contact and especially personal cleanliness. There is a noticeable rejection to bathe. The atmosphere around him is dirty, from the handling of the drug, which must be previously mixed with tobacco, to the countless burned matches. The long hours of night vigil, added to the expression of fear and seriousness, give the face a cadaverous and wan aspect. Their also exists a sulfuric and penetrating pasta smell, and excessive transpiration and unkemptness, to the point that they are confused with beggars.. All of this added to paranoia, perfectly conform a diabolical picture.

Interviewee number two: "The next stage is just as awful as the first. The sex addict abandons any hints of order and takes up with an even more incurable felon, the crack addict. Under crack, you steal from the people you should be caring for. So, since Prime Minister Shamir, all other prime ministers have been thieves on a major scale. And, needless to say, they never apologize for their crimes. Crack addicts don't know right from wrong, they only know who is persecuting them, in Israel's case, the religious public heads the list. When the female sex addict joins with a male crack addict, she loses every time. But her self-esteem is so low, she prefers to be robbed and abused because it's something she knows and believes she deserves."

Interviewee number one: "At this point, the sex addict becomes just like Israel, friendless. Even her old friends, who once admired her pluckiness, are gone. She joins her husband in his paranoid attacks against law, order and morality. They now express support for the enemies of their people and hope they can be strengthened enough to put them out of their nightmare. Their abject misery is aimed at the still ethical religious community but it's all a defense against anyone who can expose them. After she takes up with the crack addict, the sex addict will say she is impure, or has sinned against God, but that front will disappear fast enough. Something much worse is about to happen to her."

Summary

Funded by the New Israel Fund, the Ford Foundation, and a number of European governments, Adalah: The Legal Center for Arab Minority Rights in Israel claims to be an "independent" organization that promotes "civil and political rights" for the Arab minority in Israel. However NGO Monitor's detailed analysis shows that Adalah is active in promoting the Durban strategy of demonizing Israel using the rhetoric of human rights, "apartheid" and "war crimes". Adalah's campaign for a "Democratic Constitution" is based on "a one-state solution", meaning the elimination of Israel as a Jewish state.

Violence In The YeSh"A Council

Wed., 2 Iyyar 5768 (5/7/08), 6:19 PM

Pinhas Vallerstein of the Yesh"a [Judea, Samaria, & Gaza] Council leaders violently attacked three minors who were putting up posters near Ofra. The posters attacked the YeSh"A Council and its agreement regarding [the removal of some of] its strongholds.

Vallerstein ripped up the posters, and with the aid of three security personnel from Ofra, struck the minors, broke into their vehicle, and stole about 2,000 posters.

The minors demanded that he identify himself, but he refused, and was identified by the residents of Ofra who were also there.

They are currently checking into the filing of a complaint with the police regarding the attack and the theft.

The Olmert-Livni-Barak-Yishai government's liquidation sale of Israel's strategic assets opened officially this week. Iran's proxies have pounced on the merchandise. The first asset sold was the security of southern Israel. The Olmert-Livni-Barak-Yishai government's "cease-fire" with Hamas transferred all power to determine the fate of the residents of southern Israel to Iran's Palestinian proxy.

A group of Hamas-controlled policemen appeared to be very interested while listening to a weapon expert who spent most of the time responding to their curious questions on explosives.

During the whole one-hour lesson, the officers, who were of various ages and many of whom bearded, kept on asking questions and the trainer, captain Fares al-Ashi who once received training in South Carolina of the United States, took the time answering.

IsraelINN.com) Prime Minister Ehud Olmert received a vote of confidence Tuesday from an unlikely source:

Israel's muslim Arab legislators, who're supporting muslim Arab/Palestinian terrorism against Israel. The Muslim Arab Knesset factions decided to vote together to block the dissolution of the Knesset, hoping to avoid the rise of pro-Land of Israel parties.

About three weeks ago, the Palestinian interior minister, General Abdel Razak al-Yahya, arrived in the Jordanian village of Giftlik to visit the training camp of the "special second battalion" of the Palestinian National Security force. Yahya gathered all 620 soldiers and officers belonging to the first PNS battalion to undergo training under an American program and Jordanian guidance - the first supposedly elite unit of what used to be viewed as the Palestinian Authority's army.

"Your duty is not to any organization or party, but only to the Palestinian Authority," Yahya told them.

2. LIVNI GIVES AWAY NORTHERN JERUSALEM

Negotiations for Jerusalem continue apace, with a local Jerusalem paper reporting that Foreign Minister Livni has agreed to give away Atarot Airport. Shas says it's still not leaving the government.

The Kol HaZman (All the Time) paper reports that in ongoing secret talks with top Palestinian Authority negotiator Abu Ala, Foreign Minister Tzipi Livni has agreed, in the name of Israel, to transfer the Atarot airfield in northern Jerusalem to PA control.

(IsraelNN.com) Israel will transfer to the Palestinian Authority 25 armored vehicles from Russia for use in PA controlled areas of Judea and Samaria. Permission for the transfer was granted by the Olmert government during a high-level meeting Thursday night.

An additional 25 will be supplied if the first shipment is "properly used," Israeli officials said.

Russia has been attempting to transfer the vehicles to the PA for several months, but until Thursday's meeting Israel had refused to permit the transfer. Israel's permission for such transfers is required by the Oslo agreements.

RESEARCHERS INVESTIGATE PRE-DISENGAGEMENT MENTAL TRAINING

by Maayana Miskin

The Jabotinsky Heritage House in Tel Aviv recently completed a study on the psychological training given to IDF soldiers before the 2005 'Disengagement' and its effect on subsequent IDF operations. The psychological training given to soldiers had a serious impact on soldiers' performance in later conflicts, researchers found.

Dr. Gadi Eshel said the research team managed to collect a vast amount of material on the mental preparation for the eviction and the eviction itself. The material showed that the army put a great deal of effort into creating terms that would help soldiers to feel that they were doing the right thing, said researcher Ruthie Isakovich.

Isakovich labeled the training given to soldiers to mentally prepare them to evict Jews 'brainwashing.'

Rechovot: Hate of Frum Jews Prompts Vicious Friday Night Attack

A 15-year-old and a 16-year-old are facing criminal indictments for an attack that occurred on Friday night when other youths were making their way to a shul for Shabbos services.

The children, ages 7, 9 and 11 were on their way into a shul when the accused shouted "dirty frum Jews" and then attacked them. The attackers floored the smaller children, using their fists and a metallic object to beat them, all while their two American Staffordshire Terriers stood by, awaiting the order to attack.

One of the victims managed to break away and run for help, calling his older brothers. When the attackers realized the victim's two older brothers were coming to assist, they ordered the dogs to attack.

The older brothers were bitten on their legs while the attackers continued beating the younger victims with metal pipes.

One of the attackers then brandished a knife, stabbing one of the older brothers in his chest. The injured were transported to Kaplan Hospital in Rechovot. Indictments were filed against the attackers on Saturday, both of whom deny the charges. They are being represented by attorney Michael Bouskila.

Police: Prayer books used as toilet paper

Police investigating loud partying in Haifa, Israel, said Sunday they found an anti-Semitic nest in which pages of a prayer book were used as toilet paper.

Six suspects between the ages of 18 and 20, described as recent immigrants from Russia, were arrested and brought to court for questioning Sunday. Police said they were discovered in an apartment containing the defiled prayer books as well as swastikas and hate slogans, the Israeli Web site Ynetnews.com reported.

Bnei Brak police have assigned a special task force to investigate what they believe are connected attacks against shuls in the city. Over the past two days, three shuls were set ablaze, resulting in significant damage. A fire marshal inspecting last night's fire stated there are definite signs of arson, adding the attackers intended to set the Aron Kodesh ablaze.

Putin to visit to sign Sergei Courtyard agreement

By Gil Zohar

Russian Prime Minister Vladimir Putin is coming to Jerusalem in June or July to sign an agreement with the Israeli government for the handover of the Sergei Courtyard on Heleni ha-Malka Street to Moscow's control, according to reports in the Russian media. Putin is adamant about regaining the Sergei Courtyard, which currently houses the Ministry of Agriculture, the Nature Authority and the Society for the Protection of Nature in Israel. He reportedly has allocated 10 million rubles ($430,000) to renovate the historic building. The work will be done by the Imperial Orthodox Palestine Society, a Russian-Palestinian group.

Rabbi David Rosen, the American Jewish Committee's international director of interreligious affairs on Thursday became the first Israeli citizen, the first Orthodox rabbi and the fifth living Jew to be invested with a papal knighthood.

Rosen received the decoration and citation attesting to his new status as a Knight Commander of the Pontifical Order of St Gregory the Great at a ceremony hosted at the Notre Dame of Jerusalem Center by the Apostolic Delegate in Jerusalem and Palestine and the Apostolic Nuncio in Israel Archbishop Pietro Sambi.

Rabbi David Rosen, president of the International Jewish Committee for Interreligious Consultations, is seen in Davos, Switzerland. Rosen will attend an interfaith conference in Madrid at the invitation of Saudi Arabia in July 2008.

It's the first invitation of its kind.

Saudi Arabia has invited an Israeli rabbi to an interfaith conference in Spain, potentially the first step in wider contacts between the kingdom and Israel, the rabbi told The Associated Press on Thursday.

The Jerusalem Post discusses the relatively lenient attitude of the Eda Haredit - the ultra-Orthodox umbrella group - towards the Gay Parade to be held in Jerusalem this Thursday, and while it has been suggested that the Gay community might want to rethink its insistence on exercising its right to freedom of speech in this particular venue in this particular way, the editor feels that there is a larger issue at stake here. While Jerusalem may be sacred to all three major monotheistic religions, it is also the capital of a pluralistic democracy that prides itself on its freedom of expression - and woe to a society that curtails its freedom of expression.

Knesset Committee Approves Chareidi Education Legislation

The Knesset Ministerial Legislative Committee on Sunday afternoon approved legislation authored by Shas MK Meshulam Nahari, addressing chareidi education needs. Two weeks ago, the Knesset Education Committee passed it for presenting it in the Knesset plenum.

The law is intended to circumvent a Supreme Court ruling, compelling yeshiva ketanos to comply with a Ministry of Education curriculum to remain eligible for state aid. The court has stated the arrangements must be made by the start of the next school year.

Paul Eidelberg
The Bogeyman of Theocracy

Israel's Guardians of Secularism are fond of using the bogeyman of "theocracy" to frighten the public on issues involving the relationship between religion and state. They have conditioned Israelis to believe that "theocracy" means the "rule of priests," and hardly anything can be more undemocratic-right? Israel's Secular Priesthood associate theocracy with the Dark Ages, the Catholic Church, Ayatollah Khomeini, Inquisitions, auto-de-fés, tyranny-something utterly contrary to the Enlightenment embodied in "the only democracy in the Middle East."

The Illuminati are ever vigilant about "religious coercion." They fulminate against Sabbath restrictions on commercial activities in a reputedly Jewish state, yet they applaud the secular coercion of a government that expelled 8,000 Jews from their homes in Gush Katif, leveled their schools and synagogues, destroyed their farms and factories, and traumatized women and children as well as the elderly while pulverizing their flourishing communities. The hypocrisy of Israel's Secular Guardians betrays their hatred of Judaism.

All the talk about theocracy is obscurantism: there never has been a theocracy - thank God! What the Guardians of Secularism regard as a theocracy or theocratic state is in fact a "clerical" state, where a small minority uses the aura of religion to rule ignorant masses. Today, a small minority in Israel uses the aura of democracy to rule the masses. This ruling minority employs the myth of theocracy to obscure the fact that Israeli democracy is also a myth.

That something is children. And the guilt is enough to destroy both addicts and their existence. All because the sex addict repeats her past and lets her husband have his way with her children.

<http://groups.msn.com/narcissisticpersonalitydisorder/leedom.msnw>

*"When addicts and those with antisocial personality disorder have children, their families face special challenges. Emotional scars inevitably result from a union with an individual with antisocial personality disorder or addiction. A spouse can end up sharing life with an addict when addiction develops over the course of a marriage. In other cases, conning and trickery are involved. For some, the union results from rape, perhaps a date rape. Most of us would not knowingly or willingly have a child with such a person, thus the reality is some children are born after physical (or what feels like psychological) rape...a genetically at risk child develops a chemical as well as spiritual imbalance. The nature of this chemical imbalance and brain dysfunction in addiction is not yet fully understood and may be different for different addicts. The important point is that parenting affects the structure, function and chemistry of the child's brain.

Interviewee One: "If there is crack in the house and a baby or child, it will be altered for life. The woman doesn't need to smoke it to affect the baby. If she's at work and he lights up, the child will get the smoke in him/her. If the child isn't home, ashes and powder will be on the floor. It will get in him/her and change him for good. He will lose a lifetime of serotonin and dopamine. That means his thinking will never be the same. His concept of day and night will leave with the loss of his melatonin. He may never sleep soundly for a whole night again. Or her father will abuse her through irrationality, violence or sexually."

Interviewee Two: "The effect on the mother will be endless guilt. When it comes to her child she will suffer from a personality disorder, giving her any freedom she desires. The child reacts by hating her mother and concluding that she let her be violated, thus she is "on her own." The mother will try to placate the child until she runs out of money. And Lord save anyone who tries to interfere. This phenomena ran the Oslo process and will continue in the next generation. She may try to run from the crack addict but will always return. The chances for cure are negligible. Together they will run Israel on complete insanity."

*My friend met the guy who "negotiated" the water part of the "Peace Treaty" at his farm in the Jordan valley and also in his office in Amman. He is a relative of the royal family and was Jordanian water commissioner at the time of the agreement. He keeps a copy of the "Peace Treaty" on his desk to show his Israeli "visitors" how much of a rush the Israeli negotiators were in to complete the agreement. He said that the Jordanians presented an opening gambit that they knew would be argued down, considerably -- but guess what -- the Israelis accepted the whole thing without really reading it!

Hi Barry,

I suspect that the death of Uzi Cohen, the vice to the Major of Raanana, about a couple of months ago, was one of those "heart attacks".

He served for at least a couple of decades as a superb maintenance prefect in town, resulting with part of its fame in the country for a (relatively) high standard of living even in the public places and spaces.

He was also a most realistic politician who realized exactly what was going on and how to handle the situation, lest for clandestine murder squads.

He was framed by Doris Beinicht and then the state media launched a filthy dirt campaign against him.

In a matter of a day or two, the man that used to be as health as an Ox, was reported to have been departed due to a sudden heart attack.

AGENT PROVOCATEUR & THE ABUSE OF POWER

By Emanuel A. Winston

Planting "Agents Provocateurs" among the people has continued, mostly because Israeli governments need to provoke the people into believing it is the political and religious Right, not the Arab Muslim Palestinians who are the problem. Unfortunately, the once admired Shabak has allowed itself to become a political instrument for successive Leftist governments.

If that were not bad enough, the current Minister of Education, Yuli Tamir (a rabid Leftist in Shalom Achshav - Peace Now) insisted on coming to the Mercaz HaRav Yeshiva after the massacre. The Yeshiva heads told her to stay away. This woman hates the religious of Israel and has cut their education budgets drastically - especially compared to the budgets for the secular schools of higher education. But, Yuli Tamir came anyway as a "Provocateur", while knowing she would be shouted at and called "traitor" which is exactly what she wanted. She deliberately provoked a scene to demonstrate "how these religious students are dangerous to this government". Unconfirmed reports indicated that a student, still in mourning and enraged for his dead friends, kicked her leg or her behind.

Rebecca Anna Stoil and Jpost staff, THE JERUSALEM POST Mar. 12, 2008

The police officers who were the first to arrive on the scene of last week's terror attack at the Mercaz Harav Yeshiva left two flak jackets and an automatic weapon in their patrol car and were completely exposed when they approached the building on foot, Army Radio reported on Thursday.

According to the report, which quotes a police investigation of the incident, standard operating procedure requires all police officers on patrol to carry automatic weapons and flak jackets so as to be prepared in the event of an exceptional situation - such as a terrorist attack. The investigation found that the two police officers who arrived at the scene did possess the required equipment.

Gaza's water authority has dumped 60 million liters of partially treated and untreated sewage into the Mediterranean Sea since January 24, the UN's Office for the Coordination of Humanitarian Affairs said in a report released on Wednesday.

"The sewage discharge is contaminating Gaza seawater and posing health risks for bathers and consumers of seafood. The sewage flows northward to Israeli coasts, including near the Ashkelon desalination plant. Urgent studies are needed to examine the extent of the impact," the report reads.
